Appliances that Integrate

Appliance integration has a major impact on the aesthetic quality of a kitchen. It is one of the most difficult details to control. Specifications are difficult to decipher and the terms used by manufacturers are often misleading, eg. 'integrated' vs 'built-in'.

To assist you in making decisions, we have created a list of appliances that actually do integrate, are of very high quality, and have good service records. The refrigerators, freezers and dishwashers can be paneled to integrate into your kitchen.

Note: every number and letter in the model # is important.

Refrigerators and Freezers

Many refrigerators accept panels and are marketed as 'cabinet depth' or 'built-in'. However, most are not truly integrated - they protrude from cabinetry, have large or inconsistent reveals, or require visible metal frames. The models below meet Henrybuilt's standards for integration as represented on our website and in our showrooms.

**Important note about Sub-Zero refrigerators: The BI series with flush mounted installation does not truly integrate to Henrybuilt's standards.****
